Important Features Of The General Registration Act

It must be remembered that voters cannot register by mail. They must apply in person and in the precinct in which they are legal voters.

Each voter will be called upon to state his or her political affiliations. This may be given as "Republican," "Independent," "Socialist," "Prohibitionist," and so on.

The penalties for fraud, illegal registration and interfering with registration, are rather severe. If anyone disturbs or hinders the registration, he is guilty of misdemeanor and may be fined as much as One Hundred Dollars. A registration officer who fails to do his duty may be fined the same amount. Altering or destroying a registration book is a felony and may be punished by confinement in the penitentiary from one to five years. Anyone who breaks up or attempts to break up a registration may be fined from One Hundred to Five Hundred Dollars and imprisonment in the county jail from six to twelve months.

When the registration is finished, the registration books are to be taken to the County Court Clerk's office. The law does not say which officer or officers shall do this. It would be proper for at least two of the officers, one from each political party to go with the books to the clerk's office, as is done in case of elections.

The registration officers must be sworn before beginning their work. They can be sworn before any officer authorized to administer an oath. If it is not convenient to go before an officer, the registration clerk is authorized to swear the other three officers and then one of the judges can administer the oath to the clerk.

Persons who cannot read or write are entitled to be registered. If the voter can write his own name in the registration book he is required to do so. If he cannot write his name he should state that fact on oath to the registration officer and then the clerk will sign the voter's name for him.

Some Plums

Frank Land brought to this office a small limb from one of his plum trees, that contains about as many plums as could be grown on it. The limb is less than a yard long and bears over two hundred plums.

NEW OFFICERS

Soon to be Elected for Chamber of Commerce

Referendums are being sent each member of the Chamber of Commerce, designating their choice for President, Vice President and three directors, who will serve for the ensuing year beginning July 1st. It is to be hoped and urgently requested that every member express a choice for these offices and that the referendums be sent in immediately to Chairman H. S. Hudson, when this committee will tally the leading candidates, Friday evening. Later the three leading candidates will be voted for the various offices at an open meeting of all the members, at a date to be named later, possibly the last Friday night in June.

The Lancaster Brass Band has been endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce and will lend its assistance in every way possible, toward securing a tutor to instruct the younger members of the band, which now number fifteen, with a possible addition of six or eight more. The citizens of the town should encourage these boys in every way, by lending a little financial aid, just at this time, in supplying them with a competent instructor.

Noonday Luncheon

For Dr. McCormick, Fiscal Court, Boards of Education And Others

Invitations are being sent out today for a Noonday Community Luncheon to be held in the Court House Thursday, June 22nd. Those invited include Dr. McCormick, head of the Kentucky State Board of Health, the members of the Garrard County Board of Health, members of the Fiscal Court, members of the Executive Committee of the Garrard County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Trustees of the Lancaster Graded School and of the Garrard County Board of Education including the Superintendents. This Luncheon is being given by the local people, including scores of the leading club and church women of the town and will no doubt result in great good for the community as a whole. The Committee in charge of the luncheon is composed of Mrs. W. R. Bastin, Mrs. W. B. Burton, Mrs. Currey and Mrs. George Smith. Leading women from all over the county have been loud in their praise of the Baby Conference held a short time ago in Lancaster, and of the work being done in the county and city schools by the Community nurse and by the local health officer, Dr. J. E. Edwards, and all are a unit in asking that the work be continued for another year.

Leg Broken

A broken front wheel caused the accident. He was attended by Drs. J. B. and Virgil Kinnaird.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

What It Means to a Community and The Benefits to be Derived From Its Existence

America's need for leadership was never greater than now. "Produce great men; the rest follows," wrote Whitman. This is a large order not so easily filled. Nature is constantly experimenting to perfect a combination of elements against a definite need. The standard of leadership is highest where thought is freest. Leaders may be trained only as we elevate the whole tone of the national life. There is truth in the common saying that we get in America just about the quality of government we deserve. The people of a community who are content with conditions locally as they generally are, may not with complacency complain, if the affairs of the nation are not managed to their liking. There is no better place for the development of leadership than the small town; and in the important business of improving the conditions of affairs of farm life, there is a constant cry for leadership. It is an error to say that leaders are chosen. Rather it may be said that, responding to some inner prompting and conscious of their power, they arrive.

Men seek the companionship of those who understand them, who know their problems and who can share their joys and sorrows.

People resent having good ideas for their town handed down to them. The average man's first thought when the Chamber of Commerce proposes something for his benefit is "what is the hidden purpose?"

It is pleasurable to sit down to an elaborate dinner; to be referred to by the toastmaster as "we have with us tonight, etc., but the chief end of a Chamber of Commerce is to get things done for our community.

Robert Layton Killed

Car Turns Turtle Near Richmond

Sunday Morning With Fatal Results

Robert Layton, aged 21 years, a young farmer living in the eastern section of this county was killed when a car in which he was riding with some companions, went over a bank into a creek at a sharp curve in the road, two miles from Berea last Sunday morning. The car turned turtle pinning the young man beneath it in the creek bed. His companions insisted that Layton was drowned, but no water was said to have been found in his lungs, and the local undertaker is of the opinion that death resulted from the automobile falling upon him.

Layton accompanied by Frank Simmons and Andrew Moore, drove over to a carnival in Richmond Saturday afternoon. They met a friend there and they all started to Berea together, which was late Saturday night. The accident is supposed to have happened about 2 o'clock Sunday morning. An undertaker from Richmond was called about 8 o'clock Sunday morning and the body was taken there for attention and prepared for burial. At that time he had evidently been dead several hours. Layton's funeral was held Monday afternoon, burial taking place at Mt. Freedom.

Pigs For The Club

The Dixie Stock Farm sold to C. B. Elston, County Agent for Lincoln county, 27 Poland China pigs, weighing about 50 pounds each, to be distributed among the boys of the Boys' Pig Club of that county.

The Frederick Sign Company has just completed a handsome sign on the Puritan building, for the Dixie Ice Cream Company, of Lexington. It looks good enough to eat and is a work of art. This company is putting out some fine work and their prices are reasonable indeed.

DESTROY STILL

Three Arrests in Madison Charged With Moonshining

ONE CAPTURED IN GARRARD

Sheriff Robinson and deputies assisted by Sheriff Detherage, arrested Calvin Ward, Willie Hughes and John Burton, near Kentucky river in Madison county last Friday morning, charged with moonshining. Two barrels of mash and a lot of equipment was confiscated and every evidence indicated that the still was in operation. The three gentlemen were taken to Richmond and placed in jail.

One Destroyed In Garrard

A fifty-five gallon gasoline tank, still, complete with exception of worm and coil, ready for operation, 200 gallons of still bear, a gasoline tank and cap were seized and three men arrested by prohibition agents shortly after 6 o'clock Monday afternoon following a three hours search along the Kentucky and Dix river, near High Bridge on the Garrard county side.

The still, set for operation, officers believe, was found about three miles from the mouth of the Dix river on the river bank, and preparations for running off beer were evident.

The three men arrested and brought to the Fayette county jail pending their arraignment before United States Commissioner Charles N. Ward on the charge of illegally making and possessing moonshine whiskey gave names of William Winkle, better known as "Wild Bill," Edward Winkle and Ernest Luvings-ton.

Prohibition agents composing the raiding party were R. E. Duff, R. Lee Stewart, W. C. White and Captain Roy Easley. Agents Easley and Duff had the thrilling and hazardous experience of walking High Bridge, the second highest bridge in the world and climbing down steep ledges of rock in the vicinity of the hidden still some distance away in Garrard county.

Prizes Exhibited

Won By County Pupils in Contest

Last Fall

The prizes given to the county schools in the Field Day contests last October, are on exhibition this week in Haselden Brothers' store windows, and are attracting unusual interest. Some of the prizes were won in the Red Cross Roll Call last March. The first prize of $10.00 in gold, was won by the pupils of the Paint Lick Consolidated Schools, and the Gunn's Chapel School and have already been awarded. These prizes were given by the local chapter of the Red Cross and its friends. The bubbling fountains that are on exhibit will go to Buena Vista, Cartersville and Rice Academy, which gave such splendid work in the athletic contests. Two others were won by West Point and Buena Vista for having the greatest number of pupils participating in the 1922 Roll Call.

Child Dies From

Dose of Strychnia

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Miller, who live near Hyattsville, on the Richmond road, have the sympathy of friends in the loss of their baby girl, Rosa, who died last Monday afternoon from swallowing several tablets containing strychnia, which had been prescribed for her mother several months before. In some way the box containing the fatal medicine was left on a table just high enough for the little girl to reach, which she did, while the mother was out of the room. The child was three years and a half old and was the idol of its fond parents. It lived only a few minutes after the accident and died in convulsions before a physician arrived.

Robs His Bees

Mr. T. J. Underwood, Garrard's county attorney, farmer and bee man, has thirty-six stands of bees twelve of which he robbed yesterday and secured 367 pounds of beautiful honey, made from the white clover blossom, which abounds so profusely in this section this year. Mr. Underwood sold the honey to parties in Hazard, Ky., for which he received 30 cents a pound. At the same proportion he should receive at least 600 pounds from the other 24 stands. He doesn't claim to be a professional bee man, but from his conversation yesterday, we are inclined to believe otherwise.

1,300,000 POUNDS

ADDED TO POOL

More Than Five Hundred Contracts Signed up by Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association

The Past Week

Lexington, Ky.—Five hundred and thirty-eight additional contracts, representing about 1,300,000 pounds of tobacco, were signed by growers of Burley and reported to the officers of the Field Service Division of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association during the past week. Assistant Chief William Collins, of the Field Service, reported Saturday on his return from Taylor, Adair and Green counties, where he went last Monday to organize those counties for a systematic drive for members.

One hundred contracts were signed in three counties when Mr. Collins started for home Friday afternoon and the work is being pushed by the county chairman and their organization. As a considerable amount of Burley is grown in the three counties, the signing up of growers there is regarded as very important by the association officials.

Because of the disastrous price experience of growers in that section in 1920 very little tobacco was raised in either of the three counties last year, but a considerable acreage has been placed for 1922, since the organization of the Burley Association, and much of this is expected to be signed up to the co-operative marketing plan.

Another big meeting is to be held at Greensburg, Green county Monday afternoon, which is a county court day there. Business men have decided to get behind the sign-up and it is expected that a considerable majority of the growers will be signed. At a meeting in Summerville, in that county, Tuesday night, of the sixty present nineteen had already signed the contract and twenty-nine signed after the speaking.

Freedom W. M. U.

Mrs. Lidia Moore, Mrs. Mabel Sebastian, Miss Viola Prewitt and Mrs. Simp Rogers gave splendid readings.

The society was glad to have the addition of two new members, Mrs. N. L. Prewitt and Mrs. Arthur Sebastian. This makes a total of nineteen members.

Dues collected were $4.80. Mrs. Lizzie Sebastian will lead the next meeting. Subject, "Courage." Every member is expected to be present as the program will be very interesting.

The sunbeams met at Miss Mamie Sebastian's home Saturday, May 20th at 2:30 P. M. with nine members present. The subject was "The Good Shepherd." Miss Sallie Isaac was elected president.

The subject for the next meeting is "The Great Physician." Miss Nellie Sebastian will lead. On Saturday, June 10th. at 2:30 P. M. the Sunbeams met at the Nina school house.

Mrs. Stewart Being

Urged For Congress

Founder of Moonlight Schools May

Make The Race Against

W. J. Field

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Morehead, Ky., originator of the "moonlight schools" of Kentucky, and for a number of years chairman of the illiteracy commission, is being urged by her friends to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Ninth district, in opposition to William J. Fields, the incumbent, according to the current issue of the Pineville Herald, and is said to have the matter under serious consideration.

Should Mrs. Stewart desire to enter the race, it would make a three cornered fight for the nomination as Congressman Field has indicated he would like to succeed himself, and H. C. Duffy, of Harrison county, former speaker of the lower House of the Kentucky Legislature is already an announced candidate.

As the district is considered Democratic the nomination might be equivalent to an election.

MAKING GOOD

H. K. Herndon Representing Hirsch Brothers and Company Leading All Salesmen

The following is taken from the Greensboro Daily Record, of Greensboro, N. C., telling how successful a former Lancaster boy has been representing Hirsch Brothers and Company, of Louisville. The same product that Mr. Herndon is selling is sold in Lancaster by Currey and Guiley and is perhaps familiar to every housekeeper in Lancaster.

It says: The growth of popularity of the Hirsch Brothers and Company's pickles and Paramount Salad Dressing in North Carolina has been marked. Evidence of it is to be found in the recent appointment of two additional road men for the state, thereby doubling the field sales force in North Carolina.

The Tar Heel sales manager for this company lives in Greensboro. He is H. K. Herndon, of 516 Broad avenue, and Foster and Caviness are the distributors in this section. Hirsch Brothers and company are located in Louisville, Ky. Through the energetic efforts of Mr. Herndon, largely, and Foster and Caviness, there is a rapidly growing world of folks in this region who know the deliciousness of "1,000 Islands" dressing, a compound of Hirsch's paramount dressing, chili sauce and sweet picalette, and at the show this pleasant connection is making many more acquaintances and friends.

Baptist Church News

Do not forget the meeting of the Women's Missionary Union and the Young Women's Auxiliary at the church on Friday afternoon this week at 3 o'clock. All women of the church and congregation are urged to be present.

There will be a called meeting of the Senior B. Y. P. U. at the pastor's home Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The question of reorganization will be considered, and other matters of importance will be discussed. Every member of the Union who really has the interest of the work at heart will be present unless providentially hindered.

The following committee were nominated by the Advisory Council at their meeting last week, and the nominations were sustained by the church at their business meeting on June 7th. Finance Committee—E. C. Gaines, Boone Sanders, Hugh Mobley, J. C. Bratton, J. M. Crisellus, and Frank Estes. Building Committee—S. L. Rich, Sam Cotton, James Hamilton, Clay Sutton, E. C. Gaines, Boone Sanders, Mrs. J. E. Dickerson and Miss Ada Rich. These committees met for organization on Wednesday night this week. It was also recommended that the regular monthly business meeting of the church be held on the first Sunday of each month at 2:30 P. M. This change in time was recommended in order that more of the members living in the country might be able to attend.

An urgent invitation is extended to all to attend our services next Lord's Day. The topic of the morning sermon will be "The Crises." Evening—"Our Father," the first of a series on the prayer which our Lord taught His disciples. Plan to be with us next Sunday and each Lord's Day. Make this your church home.

Out Again

After a slight operation Dr. M. K. Denny is able to resume his practice. The genial Doctor's friends are glad of his speedy recovery and hope it will be permanent.

American Legion News

The oldest member of the American Legion is believed to be Col. F. A. Bouette, of Seattle, Wash., who recently retired from the regular army after 60 years service. He was more than 80 years old.

Scores of fire stations, school houses and other municipal buildings leased by the city to the American Legion and other veterans' organizations are to be refitted to meet the ex-soldiers' needs following an order passed by the Boston, Mass. city council.

After furnishing an average of 550 former service men a month with jobs from which it is estimated they received in pay more than $50,000, the American Legion employment bureau at Seattle, Wash., has been closed due to the improved working conditions.

Whether the crown of best all around athlete in the military forces of the United States shall rest on the head of a soldier, marine or sailor will be decided when the men from the three branches of the service meet in competition at the third annual track and field meet of the Philadelphia American Legion, on June 9 and 10th.

The last word in modern surgery is announced at Paris, France, where a French Army surgeon has inserted an artificial tongue in the mouth of Serg. Villa, a Verdun wounded war veteran. A shell tore away Villa's jaw but skillful surgery has now made him able to talk, sing and whistle.

When the U. S. New England was 150 miles at sea the bursting of a steam line wounded Boyd O'Neal, former Navy man, in seventeen places. His shipmates sewed O'Neal's abrasions with sail twine and three cornered sail needles, the rough sea surgery saving his life.

The $800,000 remaining unexpended following the payment of the New Jersey state bonus to former service men may be used by the American Legion to provide hospital accommodations for ex-soldiers who are or may become incapacitated.

All nuts are not to be fostered, but in order that the pecan nut may continue to be one of Texas' foremost products, the American Legion of the state has pledged itself to plant groves of nut trees, see that they are properly transplanted and care for them when they are developed.

While waiting with his outfit to be called up to the front in 1918, a Peabody, Mass. soldier fell out of a hayloft and suffered permanent injuries to his back. He has just now obtained Government compensation, however, following the American Legion's direct appeal to President Harding.

Despite the fact that New Orleans, La., has chosen as its 1922 convention city, the American Legion has received a $200,000 offer from Kansas City, Mo., which would be host to the ex-soldiers this year as it was in 1921. The offer followed questions by the New Orleans chamber of commerce, inquiring of Kansas City if the service men's gathering was a commercial asset.

Fifteen ex-soldiers have formed a post of the American Legion exactly on a spot in Harpoon, Asia they say, where Adam and Eve first kept house. The unit is called the Garden of Eden post. American Legionnaires in Turkey now number 216.

When Stilwell, Okla. was struck by a black smallpox epidemic, a guard of 185 American Legion men kept the town quarantined by guarding all roads and railroads day and night for three weeks.

With the Bahamas and Bermuda not too far away, the Tampa, Fla. American Legion has placed its entire membership at the disposal of the Prohibition enforcement officer of that district.

The first building built by Uncle Sam at Fort Wrangell, Alaska, when that country was first occupied by the United States in 1867, has been remodelled and presented to the Alaska American Legion as a clubhouse.

Baby Beef Work

ATTRACTS MANY FARM BOYS AND GIRLS

Hundreds of Kentucky farm boys and a few farm girls who are members of junior agricultural clubs this year are devoting much of their spare time to fattening calves for numerous baby beef club contests to be held in various parts of the State in the fall, reports from various sources indicate. Considerable care in feeding and management will be necessary if these calves are developed into well finished baby beefs before the fall fairs and shows. E. S. Good, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, has pointed out.

"Grass alone or grass and clover are among the best feeds to be used in growing and fattening a baby beef as they help to make cheap gains, they grow the animal out in good shape and keep it healthy. Although grass alone will not fatten a young baby beef, grass supplemented with grain is a fattening as well as a growing feed.

"Early in the season, corn alone with grass will give good results but as the grass matures during the summer and its protein content becomes smaller, it is best to feed some oats or barley and oil meal with the corn. The calf should receive one and one-fourth pounds of grain mixture a day for every 100 pounds of live weight.

"During June, the calf can be started on one-fourth of a pound of oil meal a day in his ration, this amount being gradually increased until by July the calf is receiving one and one-half pounds of the meal with all the grain he will clean up.

"A good grain mixture is made up of four parts of ground corn, three parts of ground oats or barley, two parts of bran and one and one-fourth parts of oil meal by weight. This makes an excellent feed for finishing or it can be used from the beginning."

Limberneck

BECOMING MORE SERIOUS AS CHICK TROUBLE

Frequent inquiries being received by the poultry department of the College of Agriculture indicate that limberneck already is causing the death of many growing chicks and hens in different sections of the State. The trouble, which increases as the weather becomes warmer, is quite common each year among farm flocks, poultrymen of the college say.

Limberneck, which is a paralysis of the muscles in the neck of the birds which often results from eating decayed flesh. It is a form of poisoning that also may be caused by eating arsenate of lead and other poisons found on the farm. No cure is known for the trouble, the chief control of it being prevention. Special care should be taken to see that all dead chicks and animals are buried deeply or burned to prevent the spread of the trouble, the poultrymen say.

In criticizing others we are apt to lose the good opinion of those to whom we are speaking.

BOYS AND GIRLS LIKE CLUB WORK

Members Pay Way Through College From Money Earned in Different Branches.

GIRLS TAKE HOME ECONOMICS

Number in Southern States Attending School on Scholarships Won is Placed at 1,056—Alabama Women Assisting.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In 15 southern states 2,042 boys' and girls' club members last year paid all or part of their school expenses from money earned in club work. In other sections 1,344 former club members are now attending agricultural colleges, most of whom are partly paying their expenses from club-work earnings. This does not include 465 girls taking home economics in various colleges. The number of boys and girls in all the states attending high schools, normal schools, and colleges on scholarships won for club work is 1,006. These clubs are an important feature of extension work as carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture co-operating with the state agricultural colleges.

Begun Work Early.

These boys and girls did not wait until ready to go to high school or college before starting their club work and savings. Some began two, three, or more years before, or, as one boy said, as soon as he could, meaning 10 years—the youngest age at which children are admitted to the clubs. Two girls of Mobile, Ala., with a flock of chickens, began their savings three years ago. In Georgia a number of club girls have started "go-to-college funds." They put the money realized from the sale of their club products, which are mostly fancy packs of preserves, jams, and marmalades, in the bank to their own credit. Thus far 200 Georgia girls are attending school on the proceeds from their work.

Scholarship Is Voted.

Another development from the interest shown in education by the club girls is that in Birmingham, Ala., the members of women's clubs became so much interested that they voted an annual scholarship of $200 to be lent to girls wishing to prepare for home demonstration work.

WARM RECEPTION FOR MITES

Kerosene Will Prove Efficacious in Keeping Pesticiferous Little Parasites Away.

Hot weather brings the roost mites. They multiply so fast that the hen house is soon swarming with them. The egg yield then drops to almost nothing.

"The process of keeping out the mites is one of the simplest in poultry culture," says A. C. Smith, head of the poultry division at University farm. "Kerosene will do it. It is easily applied, either by a broad flat paint brush or a spray. The paint brush will save kerosene, but takes time. The spray will save time and use kerosene. Take your choice, but paint or spray the roosts and supports with kerosene before the mites put in an appearance.

"The morning is the best time, as the roosts will be dry and much of the odor will have disappeared before the hens seek the roosts. Repeat every two weeks during warm weather."

KEEP UP VEGETABLE SUPPLY

Farmer Should Not Overlook Importance of Making Successful Plantings in Garden.

Do not overlook making successive plantings of vegetables in order to keep up as steady as possible a timely fresh supply. Among such vegetables are radishes and beans. Pale snap and pole lima beans will come nearer growing a supply of green beans than the bunch beans.

SUPERIOR FARM IMPLEMENTS

Good Tools of Far More Importance Than Some Farmers Believe—Poor Ones Unsatisfactory.

Good implements are far more important in good farming than some farmers believe. It is a very hard matter to do good farming with poor or unsatisfactory farm implements. Considering their utility, farm implements are cheap.

Actomism.

A little while ago, in response to an expressed need for some word which would indicate optimism plus action, the word "actomism" was coined. An actomist is an optimist who makes the most of every opportunity to apply his optimism and who does not confine his efforts to breezy sayings.—Journal of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry.

Opera House Rarely Opened.

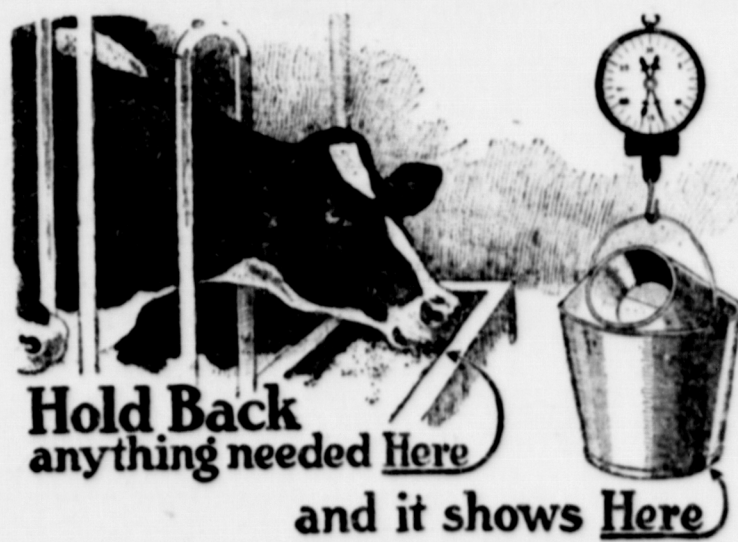

At San Jose, in Costa Rica, there is a gorgeous opera house, said to be the "fifth finest" in the world, but there is little use for it. It is rarely opened more than once or twice during the year for a theatrical or musical event. The great social event of the country, the presidential ball, is held here each New Year's eve.

A Linguist.

"My oldest son," remarked Mrs. Blunderby, "speaks several languages quite flippantly."

Washington Leaving His Officers.

There is an old book my grandchildren love to hear me read to them. It is the "Morte d'Arthur," done into English by Sir Thomas Malory. Often when I read therein of how Arthur the King bade farewell to the world and to the last of the great company of his Knights of the Round Table, this scene at Whitehall Slip comes back to me, and I seem to see once more those gallant soldiers, and far away the tall figure of surely the knightliest gentleman our days have known.—Hugh Wynne, in Weir Mitchell's "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker."

A Cow can give milk to her fullest capacity only when fed the right proportion or balance of milk-making materials. Milk is made up of Protein, Carbohydrates, Fat, Minerals and Water, in proportions that, practically speaking, can't be varied. Instead of making imperfect milk, a poorly fed cow gives less milk.

Feed Purina Cow Chow

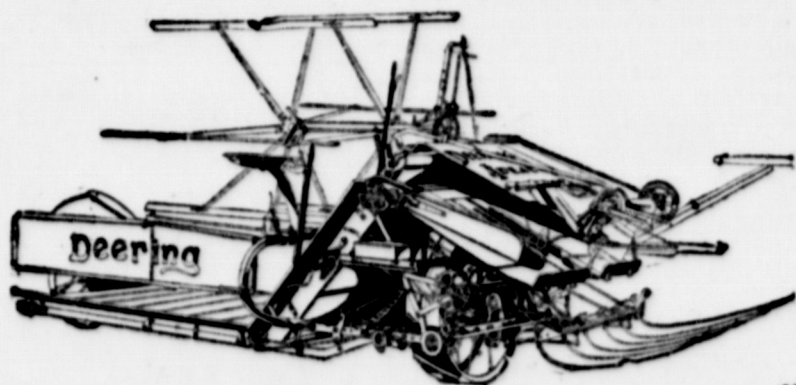

and your cows will get all the Protein and Calcium needed to balance your Carbohydrate roughness.

All we ask is that you give Purina Cow Chow a trial and let your milk scales show you why you should keep on feeding it.

Two Notables Enjoyed

(Sandy Bluff Correspondent in Nicholasville News)
Certainly it was a great time at Wilmore last week. With Alvin York, the Tennessean, who is world-famous because of his heroic war record, and William Jennings Bryan, one of the United States' most distinguished statesmen, on the program of entertainment, it could not be otherwise. Then there was a white-winged bird of the air constantly hovering over this beautiful and thriving little burg which so gently and gracefully was picking up passengers and transporting them hither and thither amid the clouds, taking them perhaps nearer the great White City than they will ever be again. And as we watched this strange bird of the air flitting with the clouds and penetrating the heights and mysteries of the firmament above we knew that Colonel Bryan was lifting his voice in flights of oratory and leading the immense throng upon the mountain top of ideal citizenship and religious supremacy. The music swept the community with soothing strains and melodious waves and the hospitality, brotherly love and comradeship of the citizens and visitors made it a week that shall tingle with glory and sweeten and mellow the political, social, educational and religious condition of the entire community and county in the years to come.

Hence the only way we have of expressing and describing the great time was enjoyed over at Wilmore last week is by saying that it was a real jubilee, a royal feast and an educational celebration that shall forever remain in the memory of its citizens and surrounding communities as a season of great joy and much rejoicing. Therefore we trust that Mr. York and Colonel Bryan will come over on the Shun pike some time in the future and see lovely flowers, hear the wonderful mocking birds, quench their thirst with pure water bubbling forth with such intoxicating rhythm, warm their hearts with the fire of Democracy, get immersed with inspiration and feel the glory of the music of Jessamine creek as it glides and tinkles over the ruffles and sweeps onward through indescribable natural scenery and kisses the feet of massive cliffs and salutes with gentleness almost impenetrable forests. To behold these natural and panoramic scenes would inspire the tongue of Colonel Bryan with greater eloquence and make Alvin York a warrior that could turn the blood of enemies into water, tread amid swords without a quiver and petrify the hearts of autocrats at the bat of his eye. These world-famous gentlemen will never be completely finished and equipped for the battles of life until they have inhaled the exhilarating breezes, drank the aromatic perfumery, saw the beauty and glory of nature without the molestation and artificiality of man and associate with as fine a type of citizens as the Lord ever made that so abundantly exists down on the Jessamine creek and the Shun pike.

All women look alike to men who can't see.

TOY INDUSTRY GROWING IN U. S.

Less Than Fifty Years Ago Toy Making in United States Was Unheard Of

A charter has just been granted to a precreation capitalized at $12,000,000 which will manufacture toys, says a writer in the New York Herald. The fact is interesting, not only as evidence of the growth of an American industry, but also as a reminder of what an elaborate affair the business of making playthings has become.

The toy industry could not be said to exist in the United States before 1875. Prior to that time more than 90 per cent of the toys used in this country were of foreign manufacture. Today scarcely 5 per cent of the toys played with here are made abroad. Practically all the ingenious toys, the remarkable mechanism of which are at once the despair and the secret pleasure of parents, are of American make.

The scientists who dig into the remains of ancient civilizations, Egyptian, Greek and Roman, tell us that toys are almost as old as man himself. Savage peoples make dolls to play with, besides fashioning images of their gods; the natural instinct of a child for diversion cannot be denied.

In Egypt the archaeologists have unearthed wooden, earthenware and metal dolls. They have found the precursor of the teddy bear in a painted wooden calf and a wooden elephant. The Greek and Roman children of long ago had jointed dolls manipulated by strings.

Although toys were among the first things man made, progress in their manufacture was slow. A century ago they were limited in variety and of the simplest construction. Besides dolls, there were hoops and jumping ropes, ten-pins and marbles, popguns, battledore and shuttlecock and jack in the box. That was about all.

The modern toy store is a miniature exposition of life. There is no triumph of engineering the toy maker does not emulate after his fashion, but it is doubtful that the children are happier than rag dolls and stick horses made them. If the child's genius for finding substitutes for the real thing could be carried into adult life the nerve specialists could take down their shingles.

No, that wailing noise in Washington is not the cry of a puny new-born infant. It is only congress turning out its daily grist of nothing.

Pastures Yield Half Of What They Should

Kentucky has a pasture acreage equal to that of all other crops combined that is producing not more than one-half of what it should in the way of feed for live stock, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the College of Agriculture. The best blue grass pasture will carry about one steer an acre during favorable seasons but in many pasture fields found in the State several acres are required to maintain a single animal. Much of this land, which is too poor to furnish profitable pasture, can be brought to a profitable state of productiveness by proper fertilization, he said.

"In general, basic slag stands in high favor as a grass fertilizer. However, the use of acid phosphate and a light application of finely ground limestone should prove equally as satisfactory. The growing of clover improves the grazing quality of pastures and at the same time improves the soil and yield of grass. However, on poor, sour soils, few clovers will succeed without the use of limestone.

"If all manure is returned to pastures, it is rather inexpensive to maintain the phosphorous supply of the soil. Each 100 pounds of meat and each 10,000 pounds of milk produced on a pasture remove about as much phosphorous as is supplied by 100 pounds of 16 per cent acid phosphate. The cost of maintaining the phosphorous supply should not exceed 20 cents an acre a year, a 200 pound application being sufficient to replace what the animals remove for several years, provided the manure is returned.

"Nearly all old pasture fields are poor in nitrogen and organic matter. The only practical way to supply the nitrogen is by growing a legume. White clover, Japan clover, and red clover all are found to some extent in pastures and by the use of lime and other fertilizers may be made to grow abundantly. As a rule, soils are well stocked with potash, about 90 per cent of it being returned in the manure. There seldom is any need for other applications of potash when the manure is cared for properly."

Some of these days we Americans, or our descendants
—are going to see the greatest curiosity of all time, a politician
who makes good on his campaign promises.

Just now there is no such animal. There never was one.
It is not in the nature of things that there should be one—under present conditions.

Promises just ooze off from an electioneering tongue like thin molasses gurgling out of an open bung hole. And, like molasses, they keep right on oozing out until the hole is plugged up by election or defeat.

And yet we can't navigate the turbulent sea of life without our politicians, especially those of the professional breed.

Bunk is soothing to the disturbed mind, and there is no one who can hand it out as scientifically and as smoothly as a politician. We have to be hoodwinked and cajoled
and bamboozled about so often or we would think the country was on oiled skids and headed for the everlasting bow-wows.

And right there is where our dear old politicians get in their glorious work. After listening to their glowing promises for five minutes we see millions and other enticing wonders ahead, and this enthralls us and spurs us on to the performance of real constructive work of our own. Thus we see the politician as a necessity and a national asset.

Nobody expects a politician to keep his promises. It can't be done. They are made to fit the various sections of his district in which he hands them out, and no two sections want the same thing and in the same manner.

It is the political duty of every voter to forget election promises as soon as the returns are counted. To insist upon their fulfillment would create discord throughout the state and nation.

Any poor boob can be a politician. It doesn't require any brains—just an unlimited amount of bunk and the ability to smear it on and make it stick.

Yes, we or our descendants
will some day see a politician
who makes good on his campaign promises.

But perhaps he won't be a real bona fide politician—just a mere man instead.

We live in hopes.

Former Empress Zita is devoting her life to the task of placing her son on the throne of Austria from which her husband was so ingloriously kicked as an aftermath of the war.

That is ambition, which too frequently produces unhappiness, disaster and death.

It would be much more profitable to the young Hapsburg
if she were to give him a hoe,
put him to work in the garden,
and teach him to earn his salt.

That would be common sense, which is the forerunner of success and happiness, and a life worth living.

Her inordinate ambition
made a fool of her husband and is likely to do the same for her son.

Foolish Zita—poor kid!

Perk up and stay perked.
The month of May witnessed a gratifying improvement in the American industrial world.
Manufacturers are putting many of their idle men to work again, and plants that have been running on short time have increased their hours of activity. Altogether, the situation is fairly satisfactory to those who are not seeking to get rich one day and cut a dash
the next.

The great comedy drama, "Friendly Enemies," the all-star National Male Quartet; the Nevin Concert Company; notable lectures on timely topics; special children's programs—these are among the many varied attractions which will appear here on the big Redpath Chautauqua which opens July 12th, and continues for five days.

The Nevin Concert Company will launch the Chautauqua with a grand concert on the first afternoon. This company consists of four artist-entertainers who feature favorite instrumental and vocal selections and character sketches given in costume.

After a prelude by the Nevin Company at night, J. Franklin Caveny, clever crayon artist and molder in clay, will give a lecture and art revue extraordinary, "Wit and Wisdom of the Chalk and Clay." Mr. Caveny is a top-notch entertainer. Quick sketches of various members of the audience are features of his program.

On the second afternoon, Gretchen Cox and Company will give a grand concert. This company is headed by Gretchen Cox, eminent violinist,
who is always a favorite with Chautauqua audience. She is supported by two accomplished artists, a baritone and a pianist.

This company will give a prelude at night, following which Edward Amherst Ott, nationally-known orator, will deliver his great "Victory"
lecture, and address on the vital problems which confront us all today.

On the third day the National Male Quartet will give a popular concert in the afternoon and a grand concert at night. The quartet is an organization of superlative singers and entertainers, and their entertainments will be high spots on the Chautauqua program.

In the afternoon their concert will be preceded by a lecture-recital by Stephani Schutze, "Wizard teller-of-tales," who will re-create some of the world's greatest stories.

On the fourth afternoon Sydney
Greenbie, author, editor, and traveler, will lecture on the problems of the Pacific, especially as they effect America, Japan and Great Britain.
Mr. Greenbie's recent book, "The Pacific Triangle," has gained for him an international reputation as an authority on Pacific subjects.

On the fourth night comes "Friendly Enemies," an uproarious comedy drama, whose plot grows out of the conflicting convictions of two lifelong friends. Audiences in all parts of the country have alternately laughed and wept over this well-known comedy success. It will be presented by a cast of exceptionally competent New York actors.

The Kublick Company with Bernice Van, clever impersonator and entertainer, will appear in a popular entertainment on the last afternoon.
The Kublick Company is a delightfully entertaining novelty duo, featuring the human-voiced violin, the piano-accompaniment and other novelty instruments, as well as charming song favorites.

On the last night, following a concert by the Kublick Company, Dr.
Henry A. Adrian, noted educator, will give his inspiring and entertaining lecture, "The Wonders of Burbank." In this lecture Doctor Adrian sets forth powerfully the marvelous achievements of Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, and also asks for better heroes for children.

Three special morning programs for children will be given during the Chautauqua, each program being given on a different morning. These children's programs are a distinct innovation inaugurated this year by the Redpath management. On the third morning Stephani Schutze will give some of the best of the notable stories for children. On the fourth morning Hughie Fitzpatrick, popular clown, will entertain the youngsters with marvelous feats of tumbling, jokes
and fun, and on the last morning Bernice Van, impersonator and entertainer, will give an equally delightful program.

The safest and surest way back to health, strength and happiness is by the Tanlac route.

Marriage of Interest Here

The marriage of Mr. Bert Elkin
Embry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Embry, to Miss Nannette Virginia
Case, of Georgetown, is of unusual interest here, as the groom is a former Lancaster boy, where he is so well known and was very popular.
The following is taken from the Georgetown correspondent to the Lexington Herald:

The marriage of Miss Nannette Case to Mr. Bert Elkin Embry of Lexington, took place Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. John Leonard Hill and Dr. Hill, on East Jackson street.
The guests were received by Mrs.
Hill, gowned in pink georgette with braid, and Mrs. Embry, mother of the bridegroom, in canton crepe, with bead trimming. Before the ceremony Miss Anne Stewart Thacker at the piano, and Miss Amy Dawes on the violin, played "At Dawning,"
"Souvenir" and "Love's Old Sweet Song."

Then to the strains of Wagner's Wedding March the little ring bearer,
Miss Katherine Elkin, of Atlanta, Ga., gowned in pink tulle, carrying a white lily on which was placed the wedding ring, came down the stairway. She was followed by the bride, lovely in her gown of bride's satin with trimmings of princess and rose point lace, and wearing a tulle veil caught with heirloom lace and orange blossoms, on the arm of her father, D. M. Case.

They advanced to the living room where an altar of ferns, lilies, with roses covered an entire side of the large room, and through which glim-mered the lights of many cathedral candles in holders of gold and silver.
They were met in front of the altar
by the bridegroom and the Rev. D.
W. Case, grandfather of the bride.
The impressive ring ceremony was used, the bride's father giving her in marriage. During the ceremony
"Evening Star" was played. After the ceremony Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played and a group of Hungarian dances.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. After congratulations the guests were taken to the dining room where the center table, covered with a spread of lace, held a large vase of roses and ferns. On a side table was placed the large wedding cake, which contained the usual emblems and which was cut by the members of the party. After the reception the young couple left in their automobile for a wedding trip.

Assisting in entertaining the guests were Miss Virginia Buchanan, Miss Bess Parry, Miss Jane Sullivan, Miss Margaret Haggin, Mrs. H. C. Judy and Mrs. J. H. Dycus. The bride is the daughter of Mr. D. M. Case, of Nicholasville and is a beautiful and talented young woman. She was a student of the University of Cincinnati for three years, where she was a member of the Chi Omega fraternity. For the last year she has been living with her aunt, Mrs. John Leonard Hill, and attending Georgetown College, from which institution she was graduated Wednesday.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr.
and Mrs. R. T. Embry, of Lexington

Pope Pius XI Under Physician's Care

Sedentary Life in Vatican Has Caused Surprising Physical Decline

Paris—Pope XI is sick and under care of physicians, according to a Rome dispatch printed in the Petit Journal today.

The Rome dispatch pointed by the Petit Journal says in part:

"When Cardinal Ratti, known as a robust mountain climber, was crowned pope, it was considered a good augury for a long reign, but voluntary seclusion in the vatican's golden prison has resulted in a surprising physical decline in the past few months. This is believed to be due to the change from accustomed open air and exercise to a quiet, sedentary life. It cannot be denied that the pope is a sick man. Dr. Amici and Dr. Battistini examined the pontiff and prescribed a severe diet and plenty of exercise in the vatican gardens. The physicians personally visited the vatican kitchens and gave strict order to the chiefs as to what was to be cooked and the manner in which it was to be prepared."

JANET'S REWARD

By ELIZABETH M. DUKES

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

"My heavens, Janet! Look how you waste time peeling those spuds; why don't you boil them, jackets and all?" Janet's brown eyes flashed; then a hopeless look dragged down the corners of a normally sweet mouth.

"Oh, Dick! You never think it matters how I do things, and all my school lessons on making a home attractive are just wasted on you, for you don't care, no matter how hard I try."

"I'm no softy! Give me plenty of grub and a place to sleep, and what do I care about your fol-de-rols? Shine on the table! Shine up the tin plates! Posies in a mug!"

A sneer twisted his nose too pleasant expression still more, as the man swung out of the cabin.

Janet let her busy hands hang idle a moment in utter discouragement. She had pulled her chair into the doorway, where, as she peeled the potatoes, her eyes could sweep over a wide range down the green mountainside to a valley threaded with the silver cobwebs of rivers. The great peaks towered again on the farther side, blue, green and wonderful. The clouds rested on their crests and cool winds came drifting over to the lonely girl; but these brought no message of comfort today.

A happy girlhood in the valley school had been Janet's. The girls all worked for their board and she had delighted to put into practice the dainty household devices the school taught.

Was it only a year ago that the death of her quiet, hardworking father had brought her back to the cabin of the brother who refused to provide more money for "schooling taught by a pack of tom-fool old maids?"

Dick had never cared to know anything better than the squalid mountain ways. A "batch's" round of biscuits, yellow with soda, meat cooked to rags and flat-tasting canned goods did not seem to have sickened him. At least, he sauced the food Janet prepared most carefully with his sneers. The year as his housekeeper seemed like eons to the poor girl; how long had it really been since she had heard words of appreciation and courtesy?

After all, what was the use of trying any more? Why mix the biscuits according to rule, why sweep and scrub and polish the tinware until it shone like silver, why put mountain pinks in a tumbler for the center of the table? She won only mockery and scorn, even before the rough strangers who sometimes shared bed and board at their cabin.

The blue of the distant peaks seemed to swim like a blue lake through her bitter tears. There was a mournful wail in the wind—it was saying, "No use! You are doomed to become a dull-eyed old slattern before you are thirty."

The discouraged little head was still bent beneath its burden of chestnut braids when—what was that? How beats! Yes, and a strange voice.

"I'm sorry to bother you, but I can't ride farther without a glass of milk. I see you have a cow pastured here, but I'll be grateful for condensed!"

The man, hat in hand, smiled pleasantly at her as he sank down on the doorstep with a jingle of spurs. "There's milk if you wish it," Janet replied, with a bright tinge of color concealing the tear stains; "but it is almost noon. Surely you will stop here—it's a long ride to the next cabin."

"I didn't intend to," was the laughing confession, "for I'd rather ride empty than swim in grease as at most of these shacks. But yours is a real picture place; and can it be I smell baked beans?"

"You smell my regular Saturday dinner," said Janet.

He did full justice to Janet's food symphony in brown and gold; the fluffy mashed potatoes, yellow with cream, the smoking beans topped with crisp pork, the steamed brown bread stuccoed with plump raisins, and the custard pie whose thick and golden filling quivered under a meringue light as foam and over a crust that crumbled with flaky richness.

Dick ate in silence for once; perhaps the stranger's compliments for the menu twisted his mouth a bit, but he said nothing. He did not leave until Steve Sargent, the new forest ranger, had risen reluctantly from the shining white oilcloth and started on his way. Dick even grumbled an invitation when Sargent announced he would be back that way next week.

"This is a place to ride fasting seven days to get to at last. I hope I shan't wear out my welcome, but I'm afraid I'm going to try to this summer."

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again!" teased Janet, releasing her hand from Sargent's hearty clasp—a clasp that yet had something in it so tender and reverent that she was to dream of it happily.

"That's a mighty good fellow if the tales I've heard are O. K.," said Dick, as he swung onto his own horse. "He seemed to take quite a shine to your fancy ways, Janet. Wouldn't be a bad thing for me to stand in with him for lumber reasons."

Janet only nodded in response; her eyes were fixed on the peaks beyond. They were still swimming like a blue lake, but her tears were happy ones now.

"What if I had given up in discouragement before today?" she asked herself, as she watched that distant figure turn to wave her a parting salute with his broad ranger's hat.

To Users Of Gasoline and Motor Oils

You've too much at stake in your motor equipment to be "spoofed" by mere claims about this or that thing in a gasoline or motor oil.

High-sounding technical terms don't insure you all the pep, power, mileage, safety and satisfaction you are entitled to in a motor fuel or lubricant.

But the word "Standard" does. And that's why it is the buy-word and the stand-by of the biggest users of gasoline and oils everywhere.

You can't "spoof" the big users. They know the dependability of the Standard Oil products and the responsibility of the Company back of them.

They know that if there were a better gasoline than New Crown or a better motor oil than Polarine, the Standard Oil Company would have it for them.

But "there aint no sich animal," no matter who says there is.

So good, so uniform, so dependable and so economical is New Crown

Gasoline that it is universally called "The Perfect Motor Fuel." It's even better than the requirements specified by the U. S. Government.

New Crown is made right here in Kentucky by a Kentucky firm, the Standard Oil Company (Kentucky) in its own refinery at Louisville, from which you get it fresh at all times—a firm that for 36 years has been a vital part of the business activities of the state of Kentucky and the economical life of its people.

Don't be "Spoofed"—Buy the "Always Reliable"

Standard Oil Products—New Crown Gasoline, Polarine Oils and Greases, back of which is a responsibility that is your guarantee of maximum pep, power, safety and satisfaction. And buy them from these, your own home dealers:

Frequent Inspection

Keeps Containers Up to Full Size

A "short" tomato basket masquerading as a 4-quart till basket. The United States Department of Agriculture picks up the scent. On the "trail of the troublesome till," the chase is called.

Partly through a desire to conform to the wishes of the shippers and partly because of failure to have the basket forms inspected frequently, containers far short of the standard measure were being made. Short-measure till baskets for fruits and vegetables are frequently the result of careless handling of the forms used in manufacturing the containers, the department points out. Dropping the forms on the floor or otherwise mishandling them can easily knock them out of shape.

Forms and containers of numerous basket manufacturers in the United States are inspected as often as possible by the department, and the experience has been that the manufacturers are ready to correct any defects in a desire to turn out baskets of standard size. But the department cannot get around to all manufacturers, who are therefore being urged to have their forms frequently inspected and to submit samples of their output to the department to be tested. If the shippers generally would also appreciate the desirability of uniform containers, the standardization of containers would be a simple matter, says the department.

SOCIAL CLIMBERS

By ETHEL I. STETSON

Malcolm Crane was the youngest and most brilliant dramatist of his day. After completing his play, "Social Climbers," he buried himself in the little town of Ashton for complete rest. Even there a note reached him from a Mrs. Drayton-Smith, who occupied a large villa in a near-by town. Would Mr. Crane honor her household by spending a week-end in its midst? Malcolm Crane disliked being feted; but since this Mrs. Drayton-Smith had discovered his proximity something must be done. She wrote:

"I shall meet you, personally, if possible, at Verdale Station. In case circumstances prevent, my daughter Eugenia, will be there in my place."

At this time the leading grocer of Verdale was planning to entertain a distant male relative from the west. Being a busy and a wise grocer he arranged to have his daughter, bewitching Genie, meet his guest. And so it happened that when the train which was to bring Mrs. Drayton-Smith's week-end guest pulled into Verdale Station a sweet country girl shyly came forward to greet a pretentious, but perplexed young man.

"We are so glad you wanted to come, Cousin Mack."

Perhaps her simple, warm greeting surprised him, as did the old barouche to which she led him. At any rate, both pleased him.

As the barouche rolled through country be-ways, what came puffing and stopped alongside but a huge touring car. "D. S." was beautifully inscribed on the door; and Miss Eugenia Drayton-Smith sat beautifully within.

With briefest nod to little Genie, she exclaimed:

"Mr. Crane, I owe you ten thousand apologies. There was trouble with the car and I was horribly delayed. Of course you know I am Miss Drayton-Smith. Do let us drive you to 'Fairview' as quickly as possible."

The young man seemed in nowise eager to haste from the barouche.

"Well, this is a situation," he laughed.

"I must ask you to make your adieu to the young lady, because mother is anxiously awaiting your arrival. In fact, some of the guests have begun to arrive for the garden party we are giving; and mother has arranged for one or two scenes from your wonderful new play, to be presented in the out-of-door theater at 4:30. So, you see, there is not much time to spare."

The young man twinkled. "I suppose Miss Genie, here, is one of the guests?"

"No, Mr. Crane, it happens that she is not."

"Then, as a special favor, allow me to extend to her my personal invitation. Let's drive over in the barouche, Miss Genie. We will meet you at 'Fairview' presently, Miss Smith."

Miss Eugenia Drayton-Smith ordered her chauffeur to drive on.

"You are an author, too, Cousin Mack? and write under a nom-de-plume? I never knew." Genie was delighted.

The horse which drew Genie's barouche was old and fat. The young man and maid arrived at "Fairview" when the guests were already assembled in the theater. All attention was drawn from the stage and directed upon the author and the lovely girl, whom Mrs. Drayton-Smith conducted to conspicuous seats.

When the curtain had been drawn on the last scene Mrs. Drayton-Smith made a studied and elaborate speech, introducing Mr. Malcolm Crane, the young author of nation-wide fame. The laurel-crowned one rose amidst heavy applause.

"Isn't it wonderful? Such poise!" "Notice his forehead and eyes!"

"Yes, unmarried. Perhaps—you know—Eugenia. But who is that perfectly exquisite girl with him?"

"S-sh, what is he saying?"

"Mrs. Drayton-Smith, ladies and gentlemen, a mistake has been made. I am not Mr. Malcolm Crane. My name is MacMillan Jones, and much as it pleases me to accept your praises as the author of that renowned piece of literature, 'Social Climbers,' I can lay claim to a lesser glory only. Indeed, I am not even an invited guest at this party. I came through the extreme kindness of my cousin, Miss Genie Rangin, whose father, my uncle, is, I believe, the leading grocer of this town. But, allow me to say, in case you have not already established in your household that much accredited scientific aid, I am here to introduce the MacMillan Jones Washing Machine, of which, as you might say, I am—the author."

As Mr. MacMillan Jones drove home beside Miss Genie Rangin they met a boy with a yellow envelope in his cap, which he held in his hands, leisurely making his way up the "Fairview" drive.

Said MacMillan Jones: "I'll bet that's that man Crane's telegram of explanations and regrets."

Pullets Lay Sooner If Given Good Care

Pullets which are given proper care and attention during the summer will start laying at least three months sooner than those which are given average farm care, according to J. R. Smith, poultry extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. Most pullets raised on the farms of Kentucky start laying when they are about ten months old in spite of the fact that a small amount of attention and care would bring them into laying when they are from six to seven months old. Getting eggs three months earlier at a time when egg prices are likely to be high is an important factor in increasing the profits from the flock, Mr. Smith has pointed out.

"It is important that the growing stock be separated from the rest of the flock and placed on range in order that it will have a chance to develop normally. It is also advisable to separate the cockrels from the pullets as soon as sex can be determined. Only those cockrels which are needed for breeding purposes should be kept. The pullets should be placed on range where there is plenty of shade and a good colony house to protect them from bad weather. This house should be well ventilated and afford protection from rats, weasels and other small animals. It is essential that the pullets have plenty of room in the house, this being especially true in the fall when over crowding on cool nights is apt to start an outbreak of roup.

"A balanced ration fed throughout the summer helps the pullets to grow properly. Many of the leading poultrymen of the State have found that best results are obtained when a regular laying ration is used. A good mash for this purpose can be made of 100 pounds of bran, 100 pounds of shorts, 20 0 pounds of corn meal and 100 pounds of tankage or meat scrap. This should be kept before the birds at all times in a self-feeder. They also should be given as much grain as they eat of the dry mash. If plenty of sour skim milk or buttermilk is available, tankage or meat scrap can be left out of the mash. In addition to the grain and mash, ground limestone or oyster shell, some form of grit and plenty of fresh water should be kept before the birds at all times.

Birds With Good Appetites.

Buzzards and hawks are big eaters. The former, of course, prefers carrion, while the hawk likes to kill and eat his own prey. He has an immense capacity for mice and similar small vermin, and does not hesitate to swoop down on a chicken run when hungry. In one day he eats twice his own weight of food.

Wife's Privilege to Purchase Food.

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance. Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said, "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting."

Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

ARE YOUR CHILDREN EXTRAVAGANT?

To allow a child to become extravagant, no matter how well-off the parents may be, is to seriously interfere with the development of its character.

Extravagance breeds idleness and a lack of appreciation of values. A pampered and over-indulged child can never really experience those joys and pleasures that are the birthright of childhood.
